THE CONVICT SHIP.

on on the waters—and purple and bright ust on the billows the flashing of light;
e the glad waves, like a child of the sun,
e the tall vessel go gallantly on;
ll to the breeze she embosoms each sail,
d her pennons stream onward like Hope in the gale.
e winds come around her in murmurs and song,
d the surges rejoice as they bear her along.
e she looks up to the golden edged clouds
d the sailor sings gaily aloft in the shrouds.
ward she glides amid ripple and spray,
er the waters away and away;
ght as the visions of youth ere they part,
ding away like a dream of the heart.
ss, as the beautiful pageant swept by,
ic around her and sunshine on high,
mes to think amid glitter and glow,
there be hearts that are breaking below.
ght on the waves!—and the moon is high,
ng like a gem on the brow of the sky, ding its depths on the power of her might,
d turning the clouds to they pass her to light.
k to the waters!—asleep on their breasts, ems not the ship like an island of rest?
ght and alone on the shadowy main,
ike a heart-cherished home on some desolate plain!
o, as she smiles in the silvery light,

oms that sorrow and guilt would not sever, deems that he watches afloat on the wave

he death-bed of hope or the young spirit's grave!
s thus with our life; while it passes along ike a vessel at sea amid sunshine and song, ily we glide in the gaze of the world,
ith streamers afloat and with canvass unfurled, ll gladness and glory to wandering eyes, here the dreams of our childhood are vanished and o'er.

THE CHILDREN.

BY MARY HOWITT.

Beautiful the children's faces!
Spite of all that mars and sears:
To my inmost heart appealing;
Calling forth love's tenderest feeling;
Stooping all my soul with tears.

Eloquent the children's faces—
Poverty's lean look, which saith,
Save us! save us! woe surround us;
Little knowledge sore confound us:
Life is but a lingering death.

Give us light amid our darkness;
Let us know the good from ill;
Hate us not for all our blindness;
Love us, lead us, show us kindness—
You can make us what you will.

We are willing; we are ready,
We would learn, if you would teach:
We have hearts that yearn towards duty;
We have minds alive to beauty;
Souls that any height can reach!

Raise us by your Christian knowledge:
Consecrate to man our powers;
Let us take our proper station:
We, the rising generation,
Let us stamp the age as ours!

We shall be what you will make us;—
Make us wise, and make us good!
Make us strong in time of trial;
Teach us temperance, self-denial,
Patience, kindness, fortitude!

Look into our childish faces;
See ye not our willing hearts?
Only love us—only lead us;
Only let us know you need us,
And we will do our parts.

We are thousands—many thousands!
Every day our ranks increase;
Let us march beneath your banner,
We the legion of true honor,
Combatting for love and peace!

Train us, try us! days slide onward,
They can ne'er be ours again:
Save us, save! from our undoing!
Save from ignorance and ruin;
Make us worthy to be MEN!

Send us to our weeping mothers,
Angel-stamped in heart and brow!
We may be our fathers' teachers:
We may be the mightiest preachers,
In the day that dawneth now!

Such is the children's mute appealing,
All my inmost soul was stirred;
And my heart was bowed with sadness,
When a cry, like summer's gladness,
Said, "The children's prayer is heard!"

THE FLIGHT OF TIME.

Compar'd with thee, even centuries in their might Seem but like atoms in the sun's broad ray;
Thou sweep'st them on in thy majestic flight,
Scattering them from thy plumes like drops of spray,
Cast from the ocean in its scornful play.

Agriculture.

FARM.—Rake up leaves from the woods as they fall and put them in the compost heaps. Cart head lands to the manure shed. Have a good supply of materials suitable for bedding, near the stables.—Do not attempt to fatten more cattle than you can fully supply with food, or they will not afterwards flourish well even if fully supplied. Young cattle cannot be brought up in flesh at an outlay which will pay, if neglected early.

Skin old woods of the surface soil, and replace half its value as manure with lime and ashes in the woods, and both farm and wood-land will gain in the exchange.—Get all the night-soil you can, and mix it with head-land, &c., for the compost heaps. Wet the compost heaps with salt lye from the soap-boilers, if you can get it. Use half a bushel of refuse salt to every cord of compost, to prevent, re-germination of weeds, grubs, &c., &c. If you have not sufficient cellar room, make piles of your root crops, beets, turnips, carrots, &c., on high places, and cover with one inch of dry straw, and then with twelve inches of dry soil; leave small openings at the top for escape of air, and dig a trench around the heap with a gutter leading off to a lower spot, thus keeping the pile dry. Do not forget that corn is more valuable when changed to fat, than when found in the hog manure; and to secure the first condition, cook it before feeding to hogs, or your manure will be very rich, at too high a coast. Mr. Ellsworth has satisfactorily proved, that one pound of cooked corn, will make more pork than two pounds fed in the raw state.

FRUIT GARDEN AND ORCHARD.—Hardy trees should be removed in autumn. Manure unthrifty trees. Top-dress strawberry beds late in the month. Bank up trees to prevent the attack of mice. Lay down and protect tender grapes. Grape layers may be removed from the vine. Crafts may be cut and preserved.

KITCHEN GARDEN.—Thin out turnips by pulling the larger ones for market, leaving the smaller to increase in size. Prepare for gathering fall crops; gather such as the weather may demand. Continue to weed spinage, &c. Earth up celery on dry days, after the dew has dried off. Prepare frames for parsley, lettuce, cabbage, cauliflower, and such other plants as were sown last month. Put away vegetables by the latter part of the month for protection, and sales during winter. Potatoes should be cellared or put in pits or piles, so as to secure them from wet and frosts.

In raking up roots and storing them, begin with the most tender, and take advantage of dry weather while you have it.

Expose pumpkins and winter squashes to the sun and wind, placing them on a dry board before storing them. Pack beets in sand in cellar, or put them in pits. Horse radish may now be dug for use as wanted, leaving the old stools for future production.

Weeding at this time should not be considered as useless, and indeed the removal of parasites cannot receive too much attention in late fall. Mulching soils intended for early gardening, will add materially to their profitable culture and earlier products.

FLOWER GARDEN.—Hyacinth may now be planted; they should be covered with sandy soil four inches above the crowns, rounding off the tops of the beds so as to lead off water.—Working Farmer.

SOILS.—As a general thing, contain not more than one part in a thousand of the atoms, in an available condition, which nature requires in forming a crop of any kind; and the production and preservation of these fertilizing atoms is the first step toward arresting the impoverishment of the soil. These, atoms, in one form of their arrangement, grow and form plants; in another form they decay and form manure; thus keeping up the great cycle of animal, vegetable, and mineral creation and decay. The plant of to-day is eaten, or decays, and thus is resolved into its original elements, to again commence the cycle of organized existence.

Every plant or tree of the same kind is composed of the same materials, in whatever soil it grows; and if any one of the ingredients, no matter how small the proportion may be, is wanting in the soil, the plant or tree cannot grow. Thus, in the bark of the apple tree, there is less than one-half of one per cent. of potash—an amount so small as to be almost imperceptible—and yet, if that small portion of potash is wanting, the bark cannot become perfect.

TO PREVENT BORERS FROM INJURING APPLE AND PEACH TREES, &c.—Take a strip of "tea lead," (such as is found in tea chests) two or four inches wide, and wrap it very loosely about the tree, patting part of it little below the surface of the ground, where the borer usually makes his incision. I have found this lead covering to be a complete protection against the pest of many of our fruit trees.—Worcester Spy.

Selected Tale.

FLIRTATION.

A STORY WITH A MORAL.

'The world would hardly be worth living in if it were not for flirtation,' exclaimed the gay and thoughtless Isabel Lee, as she laughingly entered her aunt's room.

'I hope you are not serious,' she said.—'There's nothing like flirtation!' cried the merry Isabel. 'But you look reproachful—angry.' 'Oh, I am not angry', replied Mrs. Berford, with a melancholy smile.

'But you are displeased.'

'Your words awaken recollections which cause me to feel sad, Isabel; that's all.—Sit down here by my side, and you shall hear a story of one of my flirtations, which may change your mind.'

Isabel sat down, looking thoughtful, and her aunt continued:—

'When I was young, like you, dear child, I was quite as gay and thoughtless as yourself. I was called a coquette, and, I shame to confess it glorified in the name, until the occurrence of the painful event I am about to relate.

'Half a dozen times a year I used to visit C—, and spend a week or two in the pleasant society in that place. There I frequently met a pale, handsome, sensitive young man, named Gilborne who paid me very flattering attentions, making me the theme of several poetic effusions, and with whose partiality I was very well pleased.'

'I was warned by many well meaning friends against encouraging the addresses of so impulsive a person as Gilborne, who, they said, was more serious than I, and who might end by falling more deeply in love with me than I expected or desired.—I laughed at the idea, and finding the attentions of the young poet still agreeable I continued to receive them until it was too late.'

'Too late! How so aunt?'

'Why, to my astonishment, he one day made a passionate declaration of love and offered me his hand.'

'And you did not love him?'

'No, child, I was merely pleased with him. But even then I did not suppose that his love was more than the result of a sudden impulse, which would pass away with my visit to C——, so I respectfully declined his offer, laughed at the idea of marrying at that age, and begged him to dismiss the subject from his mind. On the following day I left C——, and returned home.

'Letters and poetry followed me, breathing the most passionate devotion, and burning with the eloquence of love. They bore no name, but I knew they were from Henry Gilborne. I was beginning to be very much annoyed. I took counsel with my friends, and resolved to send all future epistles back to him unopened. I returned two letters in this manner, and received no more; but three or four weeks, after I received a newspaper, in which there was a sonnet addressed to me, under a fictitious name, and signed with his initials. He had discovered a new mode of reaching me with his passionate effusions; and from that time a sonnet or song, signed 'H——G——,' came to me from the C——Gazette, nearly every week.

At this time Mr. Berford was paying me his addresses. He was one of nature's noblemen—frank, generous firm in what he considered right, and, a gentleman in his manners. Having learned a lesson from the unhappy termination of last flirtation, I received Mr. Berford's attentions in a different manner from what I had been accustomed to do, and in a short time we were married.

The ceremony took place in Church.—I loved Mr. Berford. Gilborne was at that moment quite forgotten, and I was perfectly happy I had not a thought to disturb the peace of my mind—the calm repose of my heart which I had so willingly, gladly given away—until, as we were passing from the church, my eyes fell upon a wild, haggard figure, standing near the door.

It was Gilborne. His face was dreadfully pale, his lips ashy, his eyes gleamed with an unnatural brightness, and he trembled in every limb. I started, uttered a suppressed cry, and shuddering, clung to my husband's arm. A pang went through my heart—a pang of remorse and dread which I shall never forget.

'What's the matter?' Edward asked.—I could not reply, but he saw my eye fixed upon the haggard object in the doorway, and knew why I shuddered, for I had told him something of my unfortunate flirtation.

'Is that Gilborne?' he asked.

'Yes,' I murmured.

By this time all eyes were fixed upon the unhappy man. It was not his pale face and wild eye alone that attracted attention, his dress was disarranged; his long, dark hair fell in disordered locks about his cheeks, and his garments were covered with the dust of travel. But while all eyes were fixed on him, his were fixed on me alone; and in my alarm and confusion, I felt the blood at first forsake my cheeks, then burn them like fire.

Gilborne fell back as we approached the door, and bowed solemnly with his hand on his heart as we passed out. I was glad to lose sight of him and I ardently hoped that his passion would be cured.

But his image, as he stood there in the doorway, haunted my brain, and it was many hours before I could compose myself.

I was beginning, however, to feel at ease again, in the midst of my wedding guests, when a domestic came to me to say that a person wished to see me in the hall—Thinking it was some invited friend, who had arrived at a late hour, I hastened to the door alone. Imagine my consternation, when I saw the wild figure of Gilborne standing before me.

'How do you do?' he asked, addressing me by my maiden name. 'Won't you shake hands with me?'

I gave him my hand.

'You tremble,' said he, fixing his wild eyes upon my face. 'You are not afraid of me, I hope?'

'Oh, no,' I replied, in an agitated voice, for his strange manner frightened me, 'why should I be afraid? Come in.'

'No, thank you; you have company, I see, and I make one guest too many. And I am not dressed for a party,' said he, glancing at his disordered attire. 'So you will excuse me! Ha! ha! Wouldn't I cut a pretty figure?'

'But I cannot talk with you here,' said I.

'I will not detain you a minute. I have—ha, ha! I have a question to ask you which is really so absurd, when I think of it, that I cannot help laughing. They told me,' he said, in a plessant and confidential tone, 'they told me, ha, ha! think of the thing—they told me that you were married! and he burst into a wild laugh.

'I know better,' he continued, 'but they say it is so, and to satisfy them, I determined to come and ask you, for I suppose you ought to know, if anybody. You are married—ha! ha! ha! I had such a queer dream; I thought I was standing in the church door, and saw you coming out with your husband, and you would not speak to me. Wasn't it queer? And I knew all the time you would never marry anybody but me. And we are not married yet, are we? But who is here to-night? I never saw you dressed so beautiful before! Ah,' he added, striking his forehead, 'I dreamed you were dressed so at your wedding.'

Thus the wretched man went on, sometimes laughing and sometimes shedding tears. I knew he was insane; I tried to stop him, but I was too much frightened to speak. In my agitation I took hold of the bell wire and rang. A domestic came, and I sent her for Mr. Berford.

'Berford! who is he?' cried Gilborne, grasping my arm. 'They told me that was the name of your husband! Say—you are—you are NOT married, are you?'

'Yes, Mr. Gilborne,' I replied, trembling so that I could hardly speak, 'I am married, and here is my husband.'

'To my great relief, I saw Mr. Berford advance into the hall. Gilborne started back, and fixed his eyes upon my husband with a wild and fierce expression, which caused me to fear for him.

But Edward was undaunted. Returning Gilborne's gaze with a firm, steady, commanding look, he advanced towards him and demanded what he wanted.

The dangerous spirit of the insane man was completely subdued. He hung his head and burst into tears.

'Nothing,' he murmured. 'I want nothing now. I have been dreaming; I will not trouble you again. May you be happy.'

He turned and staggered out of the door and I heard his unsteady footsteps die away in the distance.

'Poor wretch,' muttered Edward, as he kindly took my hand, 'he is to be pitied! But you are agitated! I hope, he added, in an anxious tone, you have nothing to blame yourself for in this matter?'

'I wish I had not,' I exclaimed fervently. 'But, oh, Edward, I feel that I have acted wrong; although, Heaven knows, I never intended he should love me.'

'Well, do not reproach yourself too severely,' he replied in a mournful voice.—'Let us go back to the parlor, and forget what has taken place.'

We returned together, and Edward's presence alone sustained me for the rest of the evening. Fear, pity, and remorse made my heart faint, and my cheek pale, and I was wretched.

'I think I understand your feelings,' said Isabel, who listened with deep interest. 'I know how I should have felt under a conviction that any thoughtlessness of mine had ruined a fellow being's happiness—perhaps shattered his intellect! But you heard from Gilborne again?'

Listen! He disappeared. For more than a year he was absent, and nobody knew what had become of him. At length there came reports to Q—— of a thin, haggard youth, who wandered about the country begging for his bread from door to door, giving in return for charity, the touching songs which he sung in a soft, melancholy voice, and the musical tones of an accordeon he carried with him, which he played with peculiar and feeling skill.—Everybody treated him kindly, for although he was evidently of an insane mind, there was a mildness, a melancholy enthusiasm about him which won all hearts. Search was made for him. His friends were not mistaken in their suspicions. He was the wandering Gilborne!'

'Oh, aunt!' exclaimed Isabel, tears filling her eyes.

'They carried him back to C——. For several weeks he seemed contented to remain at home, but at length his disposition to wander returned and he disappeared again.

'One chilly, rainy day, I was sitting alone in my room, amusing myself with my first child—then about six months old—when there was a ring at the door. Our domestic had gone out, and there being nobody in the house but me, I left Ella playing on the floor, and went to open the door.

'I started back with an exclamation of alarm. Gilborne drenched with the cold rain was standing on the steps. My first impulse was of fear, and I would have shut the door in his face, had he not looked up to me and said, in a melancholy voice—

'It rains. May I come in?'

'I was touched. I held the door open while he entered. There was a fire in the sitting room and I made him sit down before it to dry his clothes. For ten minutes not a word was spoken by either of us; but his wild eyes followed me about the room wherever I went. I trembled with an indefinable dread, and oh! how ardently I longed to hear the footsteps of Edward in the hall. I tried to speak to the wretched man, but for some reason I could not; and his eyes still followed me in silence.

'At length, to dismay, I heard Ella crying in the next room. Gilborne started.

'Is that your child?' he asked.

'I trembled as I replied that it was.—Turning deadly pale, he started from his seat and approached the room whence the cry proceeded. Much as I feared him, I caught his arm. The thought that, in a moment of frenzy, he might do violence to my child made me desperate.

'You must not go there!' I said. I can hardly tell what followed. I remember that his eyes glared upon me with a momentary blaze of maniac passion, that he pushed me from him, that a dizzy sickness came over me, and I fell upon the floor.

'When I recovered my senses I saw him bending over my darling Ella, as she lay on the rug, gazing up with baby wonder into his face. With a cry of terror I sprang forward. He raised his head. There was no frenzy in his eyes; but tears gushed from them, and, rolling down his sallow cheeks, fell like rain upon the face of my child.

'He kissed her, and rising from his knees, begged my pardon in a soft and melancholy voice, and words so delicate, that I burst into tears. Before I could speak he was gone.

'How singular!' exclaimed Isabel.

'From that day Gilborne's insanity disappeared. He is now a minister in C——.'

'Is that the man, the pious, benevolent, preacher, whom everybody loves so well?'

'The same. He turned to Heaven the affections which were thrown away upon my unworthy self. I believe he is happy, but even now, when I hear of thoughtless flirtations, I am pained by the reflections which they call up.'

'But they seldom have such a melancholy termination, dear aunt,' timidly suggested Isabel.

'True. Disappointments in love generally leave sorrow in the heart, without shattering the brain. But there are beings of such fine and sensitive natures, that the health of both the mind and body depend upon the soundness of their affection.'

Isabel bowed her head to hide a blush and a tear: and from that time she was never known to indulge in thoughtless flirtations.

Snakes.

The Prairie Farmer, of recent date, gives the following,

"Snakes are much abused animals. As supposed types of the first deceiver, a sort of religious dread has ever been attached to them among religious people; and a few of the species being really venomous, and others possessing imaginary attributes, far transcending the actual powers of any of the class, it is not very wonderful that all the sons and daughters of Eve should inherit a hatred of snakes.

First—What are the venomous snakes? In the United States we have the Rattlesnakes, Copper heads, and Moccasins.—No others—and, in fact, there are no other poisonous reptiles in this country. The Moccasin is a Southern species; and so is the great Diamond Rattlesnake—the worst of the species. The Copperhead is a very bad snake; fortunately very rare now.—Robert Kennicott, who is collecting specimens in the regions of Jonesboro' and Cairo writes that he has just secured a genuine Copperhead in Illinois. The Bandeb Rattle snake is also found in that region, and he is not to be despised, as his bite is truly dangerous, though rarely fatal to man.

But the snake, about cures for whose bite so much has been said in this paper, is quite a different customer—not a very agreeable inmate in one's house (though we have killed two found in ours), and quite sufficiently venomous for the snake's own purpose. Still, that our prairie Rattlesnake has ever caused the death of a single human being—whether, doctored, or not—we have yet to learn. And this brings us to the second question. Is there any specific antidote for snake poison? Possibly. But who knows it? Not we; and we studied medicine, practiced medicine, and believed in medicine for nearly thirty years.

Our first experience with snake bites was in the State of Mississippi, where children and especially careless negroes, were occasionally bitten by the 'ground rattle snake,—a small species of Crotolophorus much like ours of the Western prairies.—We do not remember a case of bite from any other species, nor did we know of a death from snake bite there, or the State of Louisiana, where we tarried several years. Since then, a residence of over twenty one years in Illinois—with as extensive a country practice as any other physician—and in a region and during a time where and when rattle snakes abounded, no death from their bite has ever come to our knowledge. That is, no death of man, woman or child, a few small animals, usually bitten in the nose, have died, and deaths among large animals have been reported to us, but we never saw a case.

Of human subjects we have treated cases, and known many that had no treatment at all, or were treated in all ways, and the result was always the same—all recovered, though some suffered horribly for a little while.

Immortality.

How beautiful the following gem from the pen of Prentice, and how happy the heart that can see these beauties as it portrays them:

"Why is it that the rainbow and the cloud come over us with beauty that is not of earth, and then pass away, and leave us to muse on their faded loveliness? Why is it, that the stars which hold their nightly festival around the midnight throne, are placed above the reach of our limited faculties forever mocking us with their unapproachable glory? And why is it, that bright forms of human beauty are presented to our view, and then taken from us, leaving the thousand streams of affection to flow back in Alpine torrents upon our hearts? We are born for a higher destiny than that of earth. There is a land where the rainbow never fades, where the stars will be set out before us like islands that slumber on the ocean, and where the beautiful being that passes before us like a meteor will stay in our presence forever."

A Home without a Daughter.

A home without a girl in it is only half blest; it is an orchard without blossoms, and a spring without song. A house full of sons is like Lebanon with its cedars, but daughters by the fireside are like the rose in Sharon.

Well may the daughter of the household be compared to the apple-blossoms, spring songs and the roses of Sharon. When she is there, the eye and the ear of those who love her are satisfied; when she departs, she carries with her the golden treasures that she was wont to dispense.

Boys may not lack affection, but they may lack tenderness. They may not be wanting in inclination to contribute their quota to the Paradise of Home, but they may be wanting in the ability to carry out their inclination. The son of a household is like a young and vigorous sapling—the daughter is like a fragile vine. Their natures are different—their constitutions, temperaments, tastes, habits are different. We may not love Cæsar less if we love Rome more.

We knew a home which once rejoiced in the sunny smiles and the musical accents of an only daughter. She was a lovely child—womanly beyond her years—

"Full of gentleness of calmest hope,
Of sweet and quiet joy."

The child never breathed who evinced a more affectionate reverence, or a more reverential affection for her parents than did she. Instead of waiting for their commands she anticipated them—instead of lingering until they made known their wishes, she studied their wishes out.—Morning broke not in that household until she awoke—the night was not dark until her eyes were closed. How they loved her! her father and her mother; and of how many blessed pictures of the future was she the subject. "It is a fearful thing that Love and Death dwell in the same world," says Mrs. Hemans. "Fearful!" It is maddening—it is a truth that is linked with despair.

Suddenly, like a thief in night, there came a messenger from Heaven for the child, saying that the Lord had need of her. She meekly bowed her head—breathed out her little life—and at midnight "went forth to meet the bridegroom." The last minute of the last hour of the last day of the month was hallowed by her death. She went and came back no more!

Years have worn away since then, but still there is agony in the household whose sun went down when she departed. The family circle is incomplete—there is no daughter there! The form that once was hers reposes amid the congenial charms of nature and of art; they have made the place of her rest beautiful. If the grass grows rank upon her grave, it is because it is kept wet with tears.

Of truth, 'A home without a girl in it is only half blest; it is an orchard without blossoms, and a spring without song.—A house full of sons is like Lebanon with its cedars, but daughters by the fireside, are like roses in Sharon."

To Parents.

The Scripture tells us that "those who sow to the wind shall reap the whirlwind," and on this authority we think that many parents in this town are sure to be visited with a desolating hurricane of sorrow in the future of their children. No sensible being can deny that permitting young and impressible boys to roam at night about the streets, with every temptation to vice and dissipation, is but a sad way to give a right character to a child. But we would advise some parents, who apparently doubt this, by giving their youthful sons liberty to wander about after dark, to visit the post office during the opening of the mail, and hear the elaborate cursing and swearing, and foul and shocking obscenity which is poured, with a wonderful readiness, and alarming proficiency from the lips of their sons. There is ever something dreadful to hear such effusions from even men enured to profanity, and steeped in profligacy; but there is a too painful want of a nature, corrupt and bad as it is, in such a disgusting demonstration on the part of a child so fresh from the creative hand of his God.—Parents who connive at these exhibitions by allowing their children to go out at night, are not only responsible for the violated decency of the community, but will be held answerable to a higher power, whose punishment will be inflicted in the future worthlessness and degradation of their sons.—Recorder.

Weather Wisdom.

A rainbow in the morning gives the shepherd warning—that is, if the wind be easterly; because it shows that the rain-cloud is approaching the observer. A rainbow at night is the shepherd's delight. This is also a good sign, provided the wind is westerly, as it shows that the rain-clouds are passing away. Evening red, and next morning gray, are certain signs of a beautiful day. When the glow worm lights her lamp, the ground is always damp. If the cock goes crowing to bed, he certainly rises with a watery head. When you see gossamer flying, be sure the air is drying. When black snails cross your path, black clouds much moisture hath. When the peacock loudly bawls, soon we'll have both rain and squalls. When the ducks are drising through the burn, that night the weather takes a turn. If the moon shines like a silver shield, be not afraid to reap your field. But if she rises haloed round, soon we'll tread on deluged ground. When rooks are sporting in the air, it shows that windy storms are near. If, at the sun rising or setting, the clouds appear of a lurid red color, extending to the zenith, it is a sure sign of storms and gales of wind.

Lord Lyndborough railying a physician one day on the inefficacy of his prescriptions, the doctor said that he defied any of his patients to find fault with him.

'That,' answered the witty lord, 'is exactly what Jack Ketch says.'

JOSEPH JENKS Jr., Speaker,

A tax was made and some other business done not of sufficient interest to notice here.

The peace of Riswich, Sept. 11, 1692, relieved the nation from the calamities of war. Rhode Island had suffered but little compared to the other New England colonies, in consequence of her being surrounded on the land sides, by Massachusetts and Connecticut, which exempted her from the frequent incursions of the French and Indians. On the sea board she was greatly exposed, but fortunately for her, no attack was made on her maratime frontier, except Block Island, which was not very serious in its consequences.

The Commissioners of Connecticut and R. Island met, but nothing decisive was concluded between them, and the negotiation broke off, the Connecticut Commissioners insisting upon the whole tract of the Narraganset country, and the greatest part of the townships of Warwick and Providence. The Commissioners on the part of Rhode Island were, the Deputy Gov. John Greene, Nathaniel Coddington, Thos. Olny, Weston Clarke, and Peleg Sanford; they were continued, and authorised to act in the Colonies behalf, if it should be the pleasure of Connecticut to negotiate further.

Trinity Church in Newport, founded.

About the latter part of this year say 1698 a congregation began to assemble at Newport, to worship God after the manner of the Church of England, as appears by their petition for assistance in 1702, to the Society in England, "for propogating the Gospel in foreign ports." Calender, in his Century sermon dates the commencement "at about 1706" and says that "Mr. Locker was the first missionary, succeeded by the Rev. Mr. James Honeyman." That Mr. Locker first gathered the congregation about this time, we do not doubt; but it was not as a missionary from the society in London, as Calender supposes, for that society was not, established, and incorporated until the year 1702. Mr. Honeyman was appointed and sent their first Missionary to R. Island in 1704, in consequence of a petition sent to the society in 1702 by the Church Wardens of Rhode Island.—Trinity Church in Newport was gathered as before stated, about the latter end of 1698 or early in 1699 all which will more fully appear under date of 1704, of these memoirs which will contain extracts from the history of the society, by David Humfries D. D. Secretary to said Society.

Deputies

John Coggeshall,	John Rogers,
Henry Tew,	Benjamin Newbery,
William Brindley,	Isaac Martindale.

Letters were received from the Colonies agent in England, Mr. Jahleel Brenton, informing of the attempts of Connecticut upon the Narraganset Country, and urging R. Island to remit funds to England to defray the expenses necessary to be incurred there. The Assembly continued the said Brenton in the agency, and directed the Gov. and Council to do all things necessary in the premises.

Newport Mercury.

SATURDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 26, 1857.

The long expected commercial troubles have broken out at length, and with a resistless force that is sweeping before it everything not founded upon a rock. One house after another, supposed to be sound, has tumbled down, others are tottering, and many more, no doubt, will show their weak points before confidence is again restored and business is once more conducted with something like order and regularity.

The crisis has been kept off as long as possible; everything has been inflated for years, and whatever tended to the disclosure of the rottenness at the bottom, was hurried out of sight; this is one way of getting rid of an ugly sight, but not the right one to bring about a more healthy state of things. At last one brick fell over, and in its fall others were carried to the ground, and so one after another tottered, then fell prostrate, each in turn insuring the fall of its neighbor. Thus the weak have not only tumbled from their high places, but have in many instances carried with them those who were sailing under moderate canvas, but who could not come up to time when those indebted to them failed to meet their engagements.

It is said that times like these are occasionally necessary, and that it will be better for the country in the end; it may be so, but it is nevertheless true that they bring a good deal of suffering on those who have had nothing to do with inflating the currency or importing extravagantly. The country is now flooded with imported goods, the manufacturers are coming to a stand, and the mills will all shortly stop or run on short time; capital will thus be idle, and thousands of poor operatives will be thrown out of employment, at a season of the year when they most need their weekly earnings for the support of their families.

In this way Newport must suffer materially. The summer season has been anything but a profitable one; it was short, and the visitors usually here in August and September found it not uncomfortable at home, and so they remained in the cities and saved their money; the mechanics, who had a hard time of it last winter, have used their moderate earnings through the summer to wipe out the debts then incurred, and there is nothing promising in the way of work this winter; while the stopping of the mills will throw a large number of operatives on our hands, all of whom depend upon their earnings for their support. Thus, independent of the losses sustained by the failures in New York, Providence and Philadelphia, we have to suffer severely by the present embarrassing state of the commercial world. And all around us we have the complaint of "dull times;" but confidence is in a measure restored in New York and Boston, and the energetic there will surmount present difficulties, which will relieve us in a measure; but long after trade has returned to its old channels in those places, we shall still have scarcely recovered from the blow just received.

There is one paper among our numerous exchanges that is a curiosity in its way, and we are always sure to find it true to its specialite—that of collecting information in regard to murders, seductions, gallows speeches, remarkable coincidences, strange stories, adventures, duels, shocking depravity, &c., &c. It is the Brother Jonathan, and we never knew it to fail to bring to our table the largest collection of news items, under the above captions, of any sheet with which we are acquainted. The number before us is hardly up to the usual standard, but still it is not slow in its peculiar vein. Its principal features are more particulars in regard to Mrs. Cunningham, the facts connected with the swindling operations of the clerk of the St. Nicholas Hotel; A Tombs Lawyer shot dead; Execution of McKin—his dying speech; Melancholy End of a Young Lady—seduced by a Church Member; Breach of Promise Suit in High Life; One Partner murdered by another; Swindling a Countryman—stuck $100; Funny Row at an "Upper Crust" Hotel; Explosion of a Powder Mill; Outrageous Swindle on a woman; Shocking Depravity of a mother and two daughters; Suspected Murder, Suicide from reading Little Dorritt; Depravity of a son; A death penalty speech; Eloped with a Methodist Minister; Two women starved in Canada,—and as much more to the same tune, to fill up four sides of a large sheet, to read which in a lonely place would require iron nerves and the strongest kind of reliance in one's self. Yet the Brother Jonathan is a taking paper and we dare say is doing a good business.

The quince crop on this island has proved a failure this year, and housekeepers will have to look up something to take its place in the preserving kettle this autumn. The quince is hardy, and in this neighborhood remarkably thrifty; in fact, the specimens yearly brought into the market have been unsurpassed; but for a few years past the fruit has inclined to rot early, frequently before it was gathered from the tree, and this year the crop is almost an entire failure.

The apple trees are also in a bad way. As a general thing the trees look diseased or badly used by worms, but in some sections we have seen fine thrifty trees, but there is no fruit even on these.—Prices consequently range high, and we must all make up our minds to do without apple pies for one year at least.

At the Aquidneck Fair, we noticed a new coal cart, exhibited by Mr. Charles Williams, which is a novelty in its way, inasmuch as it weighs the coal at one's door, so that every man may see exactly how much coal he gets for his money. The body of the cart is arranged on a frame work of iron so adjusted that a lever will lift the whole from the axle and bring it to bear upon a scale somewhat similar to the ordinary platform balance, and on one side the exact weight of its contents is recorded. The whole thing is a curiosity, and we dare say Mr. Williams will esteem it a privilege to explain the manner of applying it, especially if the wish is accompanied by an order for a few tons of coal.

The St. Louis Times says: "Our market is actually smothered with heaps of peaches as good as ever grew in the Jerseys, apples pears and grapes which the best orchards of the North could hardly surpass, and melons more fragrant, grateful and luscious than even the tropics produce."

Think of that ye who are asked fifty cents a dozen for peaches that in Jersey no one would think of eating. We believe there is no place where fruit sells higher than in this ancient city of Newport.

The Street Commissioner is repairing the road just beyond the head of Broad Street. It was in a break-neck condition before, but with a little attention from him it will soon be all that one could desire. Mr. Coit has served the city faithfully, and his experience has been turned to profitable account wherever it has been called into play on our streets and roads.

It will be seen by referring to another column that on and after the 1st proximo the steamer Perry will make but one trip a day between Newport and Providence. Without the Perry we could hardly get along, and we wish her and her attentive and obliging officers every success. May they have an open winter, but little ice, full fares—and a streak of luck generally.

The Springfield (Ill.) farmers are offering their corn at fifteen cents a bushel, and thirty thousand bushels of wheat have been sold in Joliet, in that State, at forty cents a bushel. In Milwaukie, the sales of wheat are dull at seventy and seventy-three cents.

London, at the present time, is fifty-seven and a half miles in circumference. Across the city, as the crows fly, it is eleven miles in one direction and upwards of seven miles in another.

The Great Eastern will be launched about the 6th of the coming month, and but a short time will elapse before she will be ready for sea.

We have observed several patches of the Chinese Sugar Cane growing on the island, and while in every instance it has failed to mature its seed (the unusually cold weather may have something to do with this) there is abundant evidence that it will do well as a crop for feeding out to stock.—We have seen specimens that equalled the average height of the plant, and our farmers will have an opportunity of testing its qualities for fattening their cattle.

The quantity raised throughout the country is enormous, and we see that at the South, much attention has been paid to the manufacture of molasses or syrup from the expressed juice, and in Savannah a specimen of excellent sugar has been exhibited. The first molasses brought into the New Orleans market this season, consisted of sixty-five barrels of the syrup manufactured from the juice of the Sorghum, and it is highly spoken of by the local papers.

Attention has also been paid to the saccharine matter in Indian corn, and the Detroit Advertiser says an experiment has recently been tried by a gentleman in that vicinity with the following results:—

"He took eight corn stalks, cut off at the root and at the ear, crushed them in a cider mill, and pressed the juice out with his hands. A quart of sap was thus obtained, which, after boiling thirty minutes, yielded one pint of beautiful syrup. The Chinese Sugar Cane was subjected to the same process, and yielded about the same quantity of syrup, but not so thick nor of so fine a flavor as that made from the common Indian corn."

Kendall, of the New Orleans Picayune, has such a lot of Chinese sugar cane growing on his plantation in Texas that it reminds him of the fellow who won the elephant in a raffle. He says:

"Many of my friends in this section are sanguine that this new grain or plant will drive all others out of the ground, or that it will at least effect a perfect revolution in the way of farming in Western Texas. They are saving the seed to plant and for bread, they are making syrup and sugar of the juice of the stalk, they are feeding it out as green fodder, and saving it up for dry. No part of it is wasted; cattle, horses, sheep and hogs eat it clean, from the ground upwards, when the stalk is ripe, and gain strength and grow fat upon it. An immense quantity of it will be planted next year."

Since our last we have received the distressing particulars of the terrible disaster which resulted in the loss of hundreds of lives and a vast amount of treasure, the account of which will be found in our issue of to-day. The blow to all was a frightful one, and in many homes the shock will long be remembered, but with the public it will soon be a matter of little more than indifference, so ready are we to forget these sad warnings, and to pass over everything that does not immediately concern ourselves. The storm was one of unusual severity, and must have tried every vessel exposed to its fury. The Central America, it is not likely, was prepared for a sea that would tax the strength of the strongest, and she soon became a perfect wreck, and finally the coffin of hundreds of her unfortunate passengers. The disaster is a terrible one, the loss has been widely felt, the influence on the commercial crisis has been marked, and the utmost anxiety is still felt for the safety of many who were on board and may possibly have been picked up by some passing vessel not yet reported.

Hurrah for Newport!—The Fall River Temperance Band of this city, with friends, made an excursion to Newport on Saturday evening last, in the steamer Clifton, and when the boat was leaving there on her return, she was pelted with stones by some of the good-mannered and courteous gentlemen (?) of that city. One little girl, twelve years old, was badly cut in the face by a stone which hit her, and several others were more or less injured.

The above is from the Fall River News of Thursday of last week, and which did not come into our hands until our last was made up. The complaint here made is a serious one, and we can only say that we have heard of such a scene from no other source. The rowdy conduct of a few dock loafers deserves the severity of the law, but does the News really suppose that "the good mannered and courteous gentlemen of the city" are ever engaged in stoning any one?

Mr. Hammond has changed the form of the Weekly Journal to that of a quarto, which step is designed as an improvement, but we do not look upon it in that light, the folio with us having decidedly the preference. He has, however, shown discrimination in securing the services of C. C. VanZandt, Esq., as assistant Editor, and we take pleasure in noting the energy and enterprise with which the News and the Journal are now carried on.

Miss Barclay, for many years a resident of Jerusalem, has succeeded in passing under the silken curtains that hide the tomb of David, and there made a record of all she saw, which will shortly be given to the world. She was assisted in penetrating the hidden mysteries by a beautiful Turkish girl, and her own dress, that of a Turkish lady, and her fluent use of the Arabic language, deceived the blind Dervish who kept the entrance to the sacred spot.

Instead of cooling water for the table by adding ice, the new method introduced in New York is, to freeze the water in glass water bottles, solid, by placing them in a mixture of salt and ice for a couple of hours. When exposed to the atmosphere, the ice gradually melts and is ready for use.

The chestnut trees of Sicily, and particularly those of Mount Ætna, measure from seventy-five to one hundred and fifty feet in circumference. There is one in Gloucestershire, Eng., forty-two feet in circumference, which is believed to be one thousand years old.

It is estimated that not less than one thousand cords of wood are consumed daily on the New York Central Railroad, at a cost of four dollars and fifty cents a cord. At that rate it is easy to see that wood must grow scarce, unless some other fuel takes its place for locomotive fires.

The Stuyvesant pear tree has failed to bear this year, but the Endicott pear tree, now two hundred and twenty-seven years old, and rotten at the core, has a good crop of fruit.

A Crimean hero, who has since become a deserter, has bartered away in this country the medal bestowed on him by the Queen, for services rendered in action.

The whole amount of pig iron produced annually is six million tons, of which quantity Great Britain produces one-half and the United States one-eighth.

The Douglass Jerrold memorial fund, at last accounts, amounted to £2000. The contributions to the Nightingale fund amount to £44,039.

There is a falling off in the price of beef cattle in New York, and at recent prices the dressed carcasses stand in about ten cents per pound.

We present to day as much of the report of the Aquidneck Fair as could be furnished. It includes all but the Fancy Articles and Children's Department.

The Members of the Redwood Library and Athenæum are reminded of the Annual Meeting which takes place on Wednesday next.

At the Steam Mill in Tanner street on Thursday last Benjamin Easton's son Benjamin lost two fingers of his right hand while sawing a board.

The Loss of the Central America.—We subjoin to-day further particulars of this terrible disaster which have come to hand since our last. It appears from the statement of Capt. Badger that the main cause of the catastrophe was the stoppage of the engines, which left the ship to the mercy of the waves. Capt Badger attributes the stoppage to the neglect of the fire and engine departments to provide a sufficient supply of coal. He also states that the ship's pumps were out of order, and useless through the storm.

The Central America is the first California steamer to New York that has been wrecked, and her treasure, if lost, will be the first California treasure for that port that has met with such a fate. She is, however, the third steamer lost on this line. The Cherokee was burned in August, 1853, and the Crescent City was wrecked on a reef in December, 1855. No vessel of this line has ever been insured, and the loss to the owners cannot be less than $250,000.

The latest computation renders it probable the whole number on board the Central America including passengers and seamen was 593, of whom 173 are known to be saved, thus reducing the number of persons lost to 420.

It is stated that Lieut. Herndon had his life insured at the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company in Boston.

One singular incident connected with this heart-rending catastrophe is said to be the captain of the Norwegian barque some time previous to finding the survivors of the steamer, was on deck and a bird flew into his face three times, when he made an alteration of three points in his course, by which means he was made the happy instrument of saving the lives of forty-nine survivors.

When the survivors by the Marine entered the parlor of the National Hotel, Norfolk, thrilling scenes were presented. Ladies would look around, and, failing to recognize husband, brother, or son, would give utterance to their grief in long cries, or fall helpless on the floor. The scene was distressing in the extreme, and beggars description.

Dr. Harvey, of Placerville, awards great credit to Capt. Herndon, and all the officers, except Chief Engineer Ashby. They stood by their posts nobly, and went down with the ship. Great praise is also awarded to Capt. Johnson, of the Ellen, and his men.

The universal feeling seems to be that the stoppage of the engines was the primary cause of the catastrophe, and that this is, therefore, the main point which demands inquiry and explanation. We understand that the Board of Underwriters will not enter upon the inquest for a day or two, but that they intend to select a committee of the most skillful and experienced men in the city, and to give the whole subject a full and thorough investigation. The Company will second their efforts, as they are equally solicitous to trace this most lamentable affair to its real cause.

Safety of the New York Bank Circulation.—The admirable system of the New York bank circulation is illustrated in these severe times—Merchants may fail, the banks themselves may fail, but one great element of panic, distrust of the circulating medium, is not felt. The bills of the broken banks, being secured by the deposit of public securities, are taken as readily as ever; and the sound banks, that find themselves embarrassed by the amount of their circulation, send them to the Comptroller when they come in, receive the stocks pledged for their redemption, and by the sale of those stocks place themselves in funds for the redemption of more. This plan offers the greatest security, with the least inconvenience, of any that has been devised. It is to escape the wholesome guards of this plan that New York men have bought up bank charters in Rhode Island, and have abused the good name of our currency, by loading it with their over issues—The subject cannot escape the attention of the General Assembly at the next session. The Albany Statesman of Saturday says:

"One of the marked effects of the present money crisis, is the return by banks to the department of registered notes, and receiving therefor the stock securities deposited by the superintendent, which are readily disposed of at a premium. We understand that bills amounting to nearly $102,000 have been thus exchanged within the last few days, and that the whole amount exchanged during the last few weeks probably reaches twice that sum. The exchange affords permanent relief, by giving banks cash means in the place of circulating notes constantly coming back for redemption, or lying idle in their vaults."

Prov. Journal.

A Fact For Horsemen.—A stock raiser in Fayette County, Ky., lost eight colts one season, four of them thorough-breds, and four of them common, scrub stock. He amputated the legs of all of them, and boiled off the flesh, cleaning the bones thoroughly, to learn by examination, what difference in respect to bone, there was between pure blooded and common ones. On taking the bones of the thorough-breds, and holding them up to the light, he noticed that they were almost transparent, almost as much so as white horn. He tried the same experiment with the bones of the inferior stock. They were opaque, and transmitted light no more than buffalo horn. He then tested the bones by weight, and found the thorough-bred by far the heavier, showing their substance and solidity. They were hard and dense as ivory. This is a singular fact.

A Good Road-Breaker.—On a visit the 16th to the Eastern Penitentiary in this city we saw a curiosity. The superintendent was packing up an order for 750 pairs of boots just made for a plantation in Mississippi. There was a due proportion of sizes, with but one exception. For this pair a paper diagram of the sole was sent as a guide to the maker. The boots when finished, were 19¾ inches long, 6¾ across the sole, and 4¼ inches wide at the heel. The pair weighed just eight pounds! The boots were made for a negro slave of gigantic proportions, a sort of deputy overseer on the plantation for which the boots were ordered. Beside them, the other foot gear, although by no means small, appeared fairy-like in comparison.—Phil N American.

The first sub-marine telegraph ever successfully used was made and laid by Col. Samuel Colt, of Hartford, in 1842. It extended from New York city, across the East River at Hell Gate, and in the beds of several smaller streams to Coney Island and Fire Island Inlet; about sixty miles—The use of gutta percha was then unknown, and Col. Colt used No. 15 copper wire covered with cotton yarn, saturated with tallow and beeswax, and enclosed in lead pipe. It worked for about six months, when it was torn away by the rocks at Hell Gate.

Art Matter.—The large portrait of Bishop Berkeley, and the late Rev. Dr. William E. Channing, may be seen, during the present week, at Mr. Pratt's studio, No. 228 Washington street, corner of Summer street, from nine till one o'clock. These paintings are for Brown University. The head of Berkeley is copied from one belonging to the Massachusetts Historical Society, and that of Dr. Channing from the original by Gambardella, in possession of the Hon. Jonathan Phillips.

Honor to an American.—We hear that the Emperor Louis Napoleon not long since caused an inquiry to be made of Minister Mason, whether this government would permit Lieut. Maury, U. S. N., to receive from him the cross of the Legion of Honor; and that, having referred the question to Washington, answer has been returned that under our law no one in Lt. M's position in the public service can receive a testimonial from a foreign government.—Washington Evening Star.

A Shaving Business.—Seventeen men are constantly employed at the Charlestown Navy Yard in shaving the bark from wood to be used as fuel on board ships-of war fitted out at this station. The object of this singular custom, says the Journal, is to prevent the accumulation on board ship of dirt and insects which would naturally result from putting the wood on board with the bark on.

A corporal with six recruits was on his way to New York on the cars the other day, when as the train was going under full headway, near Poughkeepsie, a recruit leaped off the train. Quick as a flash the corporal was after him—and caught him. Strange to say, neither of the men were badly injured, and the train having stopped, both resumed their seats.

The Government camels, now at work in Texas, carry 600 pounds of corn at a load, and travel 3½ miles an hour without difficulty. Their great value is not so much on account of greater strength than the horse, but on account of their ability to make the jornada del muerto across some of the desert plains of Western Texas.

John Graham of Saccarappa, Me., has a pumpkin vine eight feet long, and for every four feet there is a pumpkin—some of them of an enormous size. The spot where the seed was planted, was enriched by the carcass of a hog being buried there last fall.

The William Wilson is the name of a ship of 400 tons burden, launched at Warren, R. I, on Friday last. She is named after William Wilson, Esq, an esteemd merchant of Baltimore, and is intended for the whaling business in the South Indian Ocean.

Letters from the Lady Franklin Arctic steamer Fox in Greenland, state that the progress of the expedition exceeded expectations.

A Terrible Pest.—A St. Helena letter in the Journal of Commerce says:

"The island has been sorely pestered these few years past by a species of small white ant, that was brought here in the wood of a vessel from the coast of Africa, and now swarms by millions in all our houses, stores, trees &c., &c. It first has wings, which very soon drop off, and then this mite eats into wood, cloth, provisions, trees, vegetables, and every thing that can be destroyed; and the first we know of its destructive power, is our house, tumbling about our ears. They eat into the wood-work and eat up all inside, leaving but a shell, which with your finger you can penetrate. And only in darkness do they work, for their deeds are evil. Houses thoroughly repaired are in less than two years crumbling to ruin. It is a most unfortunate evil to the island, and causes a yearly loss of thousands of pounds.—We shall be compelled soon to live in iron houses. It is one of the plagues of Pharaoh."

Never too Late.—It is never too late to do right; as, for instance, a gentleman began to study grammar after he had written for the press ten years. It is never too late to get married; Naomi, the daughter of Enoch, took her first husband at five hundred and eighty. It is never too late to drop any habit; James, the novelist, wrote sixty-nine volumes before he could shake off his "solitary horseman." It is never too late to be a "wide awake" character; an old gentleman who has ceased to read the Daily Evening Blunderbuss, has entirely recovered from the sleepiness that used to afflict him. It is sometimes too late to "pop the question;" a man once did so to a "charming vidder," just as she had reached the house after burying her first husband; "You are too late," was the reply, "the deacon spoke to me at the grave!—Picayune.

Firemen's Parade—Hartford, Sept 24.—The firemen have had a great time to-day in this city. The weather has been very fine, and the gathering the largest ever got together on any such occasion in this city. Over 55 companies and 3,000 firemen were in the procession. 39 companies took part in playing for the prizes, which were eight in number. The following companies took the prizes:—Pacific, Chicopee, Mass., 186 feet 9 inches; Mayflower, North Bridgewater, Mass., 180 feet 4 inches; Neptune, New Haven, 175 feet 2 inches; Gaspee, Providence, 160 feet 4 inches; Cataract, Poughkeepsie, 160 feet; Collinsville, of Collinsville, Ct., 165 feet; Holyoke, of Holyoke, Mass., 161 feet; Barnicoat, of Boston, 160 feet 4 inches.

Ferocity of the Pike.—In the extensive lake of water in the park at Wynyard, the seat of the Marchioness of Londonderry, here are some very large pike, supposed to weigh fifty or sixty pounds each. A few days ago, (says a London paper) a large retriever dog was sent into the lake, and when at a distance from the shore, he was attacked by one of these fresh water sharks, which pulled him under water several times and tumbled him over and over on his back, to the astonishment of the keeper. A brood of cygnets have been devoured by them, and they make no bones of a duck, many of which have shared the same fate of the cygnets.

Stoppage of Mills in Fall River.—The factories stopped in this place now, or about stopping, are the Massasoit Mill, the American Linen Mill, the American Print Works, the Bay State Print Works and the Mount HopeThread Factory, besides the machine shops, throwing one thousand person out of employment. The general impression is that we have arrived at the worst, and that the other mills, five in number, will run through the winter—at least we have heard nothing to the contrary.—Star.

At the sale of James B. Clay's stud of thorough bred horses in Fayette county, Kentucky, last week, his imported stallion 'IndianChief,' brought $5020 under the hammer. Some of his fillies were bid off by Kentuckians for $500 and $600 each. It is said to have been a wonderful sale.

Mr. Felton's famous stallion, Ticonderoga Black Hawk, of Govanstown, which took the first premium at the United States Agricultural Fair at Lexington, Kentucky, is dead. He was valued by his owner at $10,000.

Broken Legged Horses should not be Killed.—That they generally are killed, when thus unfortunate, everybody knows. A veterinary surgeon writes to the Boston Transcript that the legs of a horse can be as securely splintered as those of a man, and with as good result. He thinks that it should be generally known that the art of surgery is as applicable to the lower animals as to man, and that their reparative powers are even better.

In Pike Co. Ala., on the 13th inst., the family of Thomas Arasell, overseer, consisting of thirty-seven persons was poisoned by the negro cook, who mixed arsenic with their food at the instigation of a Hungarian named Caskima. Six of the family had died, and the others remained in a critical condition. The dispatch adds:—"The cook was immediately burnt, and the Hungarian will share the same fate to-morrow."

It appears that four more cargoes of negroes from Africa, numbering 1783 likely hands, have been landed on the Cuban coast within half a mile of the country seat of the Governor General Concha. These negroes, who are obtained on the African coast at very little cost, are said to be worth in the aggregate $1,069,800. The enormous profits of the slave trade embolden the traders to run all risks.

Two instances of remarkable longevity have recently been recorded. A Turkish manufacturer of toys near Constantinople died, aged one hundred and thirteen years, and a lady belonging to a rich family of bankers of Constantinople died at Smyrna, at the age of one hundred and seventeen years.

Jacob Hepseler was fined £10 by the quarter sessions at Berlin, Canada, for getting in his hay on Sunday. He appealed to a jury, and the jury, after hearing an argument for the defence, found a verdict sustaining the fine. Even Connecticut justice is less bigoted than Canadian.

Protection of Cats in London.—In London, a fortnight ago, John Dean and William Cushway, were sentenced to one month in the House of Correction, for torturing a cat, by setting a dog upon her. In aggravation of the offence, it was proved that she was a cat of good character.

The Hopkinton Bank was announced discredited in the telegraphic dispatch from New York yesterday. There is no cause for this. The bills of the bank are received at the Suffolk, and its account and credit are good at the Merchants, in this city.—Prov. Journal, 25th.

A Nothingarian.—A Connecticut schoolmaster asked a lad from Newport, "How many Gods are there?" The boy, after scratching his head some time, replied: "I don't know how many you have in Connecticut, but we have none in Rhode Island."

The receiver of the Bank of South County, Elisha R. Potter, has no doubt of its ultimate ability to pay its bills without reclamation among the stockholders among whom are several of the wealthiest men of the country.

Dr. Durfee, of Fall River, has in his green house a bunch of grapes estimated to weigh fifteen pounds, and measuring four feet and five inches in length. Such a bunch of grapes we presume never grew in the country before.

The Board of Examiners having reported in favor of the plan of Mr. Jacob A. Westervelt, of New York, for the new screw propeller sloop of war, the Secretary of the Navy has awarded him the contract.

St. Paul papers tell of a gentleman in that town who had for breakfast some of the fresh water oysters, or Unios, common to the Mississippi, in one of which he found a pearl the size of a pea, worth $2500.

Fire in a School House.—The High Street School House, in Fall River, Mass., caught fire from the furnace on Monday afternoon, and was damaged to the extent of about $500.

During the fiscal year ending June 30th, the amount of public lands sold was nearly 1,143,000 acres, and the receipts therefor upwards of $3,500,000.

The Philadelphia Ledger states that within the last three months, forty-three tons of new cents have been issued from the Mint. The entire number coined has been 8,600,000.

The sub-marine telegraph from Europe to Africa, between Bona and Cape Teulada, a distance of 145 miles, was successfully laid on the 9th inst.

Spain is likely to arrange her difficulties with Mexico through fear of an American invasion of Cuba.

Two and a half million feet of pine lumber were used in making clocks in Connecticut last year.

The East India Company have chartered twelve more steamers to convey troops to India.

There is no later news from India.

"Straightening the Back."—It is a custom in Berwickshire, England, among women workers in the field, when their backs become much tired by bowing low down while singling turnips with short shanked hoes, to lie down upon their faces to the ground, allowing others to step across the lower part of their backs, on the lumbar region, with one foot, several times, until all pain of fatigue is removed. Burton, in his "First Footsteps in East Africa," narrates a very similar custom in females who lead the camels, on feeling fatigued, and who "lie at full length, prone, stand upon each others back, trampling and kneading with their toes, and rise like giants refreshed."—This custom is called "jogsi" in Africa; in England it is "straightening the back."

In Norfolk and New York $12,000 have already been collected for the sufferers by the wreck of the Central America.

New York Grain Market

The receipts of Wheat have been quite large since our last, and receivers have been free sellers, on account of the hardness of the Money market, at some abatement in prices. The sales include common to prime White Southern at $1.35 a $1.50; Red do., $1.25 a $1.35; inferior to prime White Ohio, $1 29 a $1,40; Red Ohio, $1.25 a $1.26; damaged to good Spring Chicago, 98 a 108 cts; Red Indiana, $1.25 a $1.30; White Illinois, $1.40; Amber Tennessee, $1 41; White Missouri, $1.50; and White Michigan, $1.40 a $1.42. Gutta Percha and India Rubber.—We would refer our readers to the advertisement of Messrs. Henry A. Hall & Co., who are agents for the sale of every description of Gutta Percha and India Rubber Goods, including all the varieties which are so extensively purchased by our merchants, and we believe clothing dealers and others can save from 20 to 30 per cent. by purchasing these goods at head quarters, instead of buying from second hands, which we are informed has been the case heretofore.

THE MEDICAL FACULTY AMAZED.—"The sales of Dr. Vanderveer's only popular medicated Gin," says the New York Times, "has astonished the druggist, and alarmed the medical faculty, as it is a vast deal more economical to pay one dollar for a bottle of the Schiedam Schnapps than to call in a physician at any derangement of the system.

The old Dutch Doctor effected a great change in remedial agents, when he introduced his valuable SCHIEDAM SCHNAPPS. If people will act as their own medical advisors, and save doctors' fees, let them buy the Vanderveer's article of Schnapps and let all others alone." Pretty good for a New York paper.

☞ The greatest preservative of beauty known to modern science, is Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative and Cosmetic.—Among the most important features of female beauty, are a luxuriant head of hair and a fine complexion; both of which should be guarded as sacred treasurers, for either may be lost by neglect, or preserved by the use of the above named article; delay is dangerous. We seldom undertake, editorially to endorse what are called 'Hair Restoratives,' as knowing full well that the great majority of such preparations are entirely worthless.—Exceptions there are, nevertheless and among these we have never hesitated to express our conviction that the article known as 'Wood's Restorative' is entitled to a proud pre-eminence. This article has told its own story in numberless instances of prematurely gray and bald heads and the certificates in regard to its amazing efficacy have been alike numerous, unsolicited and emphatic. When Senators of the United States and others, (of the highest standing, socially and politically) openly declare that Wood's Hair Restorative is all, and more than all that it pretends to be, we cannot do otherwise than believe them. The article can be had at all our Druggists.—Rahway Republican.

☞ We think it is hardly known even to the most intelligent of our readers, how deep some of the sciences are looking down into the mysteries of creation. We knew there were wonderful discoveries in these times, and wonderful uses made of them, but did not know the Chemists were imitating in their crucibles and even surpassing the most wonderful productions of organic life. During our visit to Lowell we were introduced by one of their prominent citizens to the laboratory of Dr. Ayer, (inventor of Cherry Pectoral and Cathartic Pills,) where we were shown with generous frankness, his processes and his products. This master genius of his art is manufacturing the subtle essences of flowers from tar and other vegetable substances. His essence of Pine Apple, Strawberry, Checkerberry, Quince, Pear, Vanilla, Cinnamon, &c., not only equal but they exceed in purity of flavor, those vegetables themselves. His oil of Winter-green is purer and of better flavor than any that can be gathered from the plant—and yet is made by chemical composition from the Hydro-carbons in tar! His process is, to analyze the substance and find the exact ultimate atoms of which it is made, then recompose them in the same proportions which exist in nature.

A Liver Remedy.—The Liver, according to Physiologists, occupies in our human economy a place second only to the heart, and consequently is one of the greatest dispensers of health and happiness or sickness and disease. To keep the Liver in a proper performance of its duties is to keep the system in a state of health, and free from nearly all bodily ills. Dr. Sanford's Invigorator is a great Regulator of the Liver. It instills into it new life and vigor, strengthens it and invigorates it, curing the fountain from whence so many streams of sickness flow. We say to all who are troubled with any derangement of the Liver, such as Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Sick Headache, Billiousness or debility of system, do not fail to try Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator.

ON TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 22,
WE PROPOSE TO PUBLISH
The Great Book of the Year!
The New Tale by the Authoress of
THE LAMPLIGHTER!

MISS CUMMINS has chosen for the title of her new Book the name of the principal heroine the beautiful and accomplished

Mabel Vaughan,

And has written a story, which for elegance of diction and thrilling interest, has rarely been equalled by any American lady. The question has been repeatedly asked—Can Miss Cummins write another book equal to the 'LAMPLIGHTER?' We can answer this question now, with perfect assurance, not only from our own personal knowledge, but from the unqualified testimony of literary gentlemen of Boston, who have read the work with great care, and with absorbing interest both of whom pronounce it a superior book to her first, and assure us that the authoress of 'The Lamplighter,' instead of losing positions, will add immensely to her previously well-earned and wide reputation.

MEAL! MEAL!! MEAL!!!

WE WOULD call the attention of persons feeding their teams, and particularly Farmers who intend to feed their stock for the market, to the fact that we are at all times prepared to furnish them with Meal of all qualities, (whether fine or coarse,) at a moments' warning, as we do not have to wait for wind or water, at a saving to them of from five to ten per cent. as we manufacture it ourselves and are determined that the prices shall be such that the purchaser will take the Meal in preference to the Corn.

THE large and valuable Farm belonging to the heirs of the late Gideon Peckham, fo Middletown, will be sold on reasonable terms and possession given immediately, if required, on application to either of the subscribers. The farm is situated on the east shore of the island, partly in Middletown and partly in Portsmouth. It contains one hundred and fourteen acres, old measure, and will be sold at a price that will make it an object for agricultural purposes. The soil is rich, the land is free from stone, and the lots are all handsomely laid off and securely walled. There is also a thrifty orchard in good bearing order, a large dwelling house, barns, cribs, &c. It is easy of access both by land and water, and its shore privileges are unsurpassed. The water front is about one hundred rods, where gravel from the finest to the coarest can be procured in untold quantities, and there is also a large quarry of building stones, easily worked and inexhaustible. The prospect from every part of the farm is delightful. To the north the view extends to Mount Hope Bay and on the south it takes in a wide range over the southern portion of the island and the ocean. For building sites it could be turned to good account, and to divide it into building lots would be attended with but little expense.

LOTTERIES.

The Lotteries of Samuel Swan & Co., are chartered by the State of Georgia, and have sworn commissioners appointed to superintend their drawings, and certify that everything connected with the same is done in a strictly honorable manner. They offer to the public a fair opportunity for investment, the interests of parties at a distance being as well protected as though they were present.—The Managers would respectfully call attention to the fact that all persons have a legal right to send orders for tickets to Georgia, as the lotteries of Samuel Swan & Co. are authorized by the Legislature of that State. A lottery will be drawn every Saturday throughout the year, all orders received being filled in the drawing next to take place after the same comes to hand. According to the scheme one ticket in every ten must draw a prize. Tickets $10; halves, $5; quarters, $2.50. No tickets sent unless the money accompanies the order. The drawings are upon the principle of one number on each ticket, and are so simple that none can fail to understand them. There is no combination of numbers to mystify the buyer. Prizes vary from $40 to $50,000; every prize being drawn, and result of drawing forwarded to all purchasers.

A list of the numbers that are drawn from the wheel, with the amount that each prize is entitled to, will be published after every drawing; in the following papers:—New Orleans Delta, Mobile Register, Charleston Standard, Nashville Democrat, Atlanta Intelligencer, and N. Y. Weekly Day Book. Write your address plainly, and direct to

Prizes paid in full—no percentage deducted from prizes as in other lotteries.

A RETIRED PHYSICIAN 75 YEARS OF AGE whose sands of life have nearly run out, discovered while in the East Indies, a certain cure for Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and General debility. Burnett's Cocoaine!

A Perfect Dressing for THE HAIR.

The COCOAINE holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized COCOA NUT OIL, prepared expressly for this purpose.

No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

It softens the hair when hard and dry.
It soothes the irritated scalp skin.
It affords the richest lustre.
It remains longest in effect.

It is the best and cheapest Hair Dressing in the World.

Marsden, speaking of the people of Sumatra, says, "Their hair is strong and of a shining black, the improvement of both which qualities it probably owes in a great measure to the constant use of Cocoa Nut Oil."—Marsden, p. 49.

TESTIMONIAL.
BOSTON, July 19th 1857.

Messrs. J. Burnett & Co.—I cannot refuse to state the salutary effect in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—(Cocoaine.)

For many months my hair had been falling off, until I was fearful of losing it entirely. The skin upon my head became gradually more and more inflamed, so that I could not touch it without pain. This irritated condition I attributed to the use of various advertised hair washes, which I have since been told contained camphene spirit.

By the advice of my physician, to whom you had shown your process of purifying the Cocoa Nut Oil, I commenced its use the last week in June. The first application allayed the itching and irritation; in three or four days the redness and tenderness disappeared; the hair ceased to fall, and I have now a thick growth of new hair. I trust that others similarly afflicted will be induced to try the same remedy.
Yours, very truly, SUSAN R. POPE.

Illumination! Paraffine Oil!

Every house, factory, shop or office in town or country may be lighted more brilliantly and more economically by using PARAFFINE LAMP OIL, than by any other Oil, Camphene, Burning Fluid, or even Gas itself.

Paraffine Oil, in use, is as cleanly as fluid, is not explosive, gives a more brilliant light, and is more economical than any other oil.

The comparative cost of an equal amount of light from various Oils and Fluid at their respective retail prices is shown in the following table, prepared by Mr. Edward N. Kent, a leading analytical and practical chemist of New York, who says:—"Paraffine Oil gives a brilliant and dazzling light, does not ignite when a lighted match is placed directly in the oil, does not resinify by exposure to the air, and consequently does not gum the wick, and may be entirely consumed in a lamp without depreciation in the quantity or quality of the light," &c.

Material.	Retail price.	Cost of an equal amount of light.
Paraffine Oil,	$1 00	$0 15
Rapeseed Oil,	1 50	0 31
Whale Oil,	0 31	0 42
Lard Oil,	1 25	0 61
Sperm Oil,	2 25	0 92
Burning Fluid,	0 87	1 00

Paraffine Lamp Oil may be used in Camphene, Rosin Oil, Kerosene, or other lamps with button burners (now in common use) or in Argand lamps, with suitable chimneys. In using Paraffine Oil the lamp wicks require no trimming, and when once ignited will burn without further care until the oil is all consumed. For sale by the subscribers.

The friends of persons who have been restored from confirmed consumption by the use of this original preparation, and the grateful parties themselves, have by recommending it and acknowledging its wonderful efficacy, given to the article a vast popularity in New England. The cod liver oil is in this combination robbed of its unpleasant taste, and is rendered doubly effective in being coupled with the lime, which is itself a restorative principle, supplying nature with just the agent and assistance required to heal and reform the diseased lungs. CHILSON'S NEW CONE FURNACE.

Five Sizes of the Cone Furnace

Four Sizes of the Trio Portable Furnace

Patented in America, England and France.

The thorough and highly satisfactory trials of a large number of CONE FURNACES, in use during the last cold winter, has proved it an invaluable invention, which far surpasses all plans before known, for the purposes of heat. The manner of holding, or keeping back the smoke and gases in a cluster of cones (or tapering radiators) near the fire, into which the formerly wasted products of combustion are returned and completely consumed. The consequent unparalelled economy of fuel, and great heating power, combined with simplicity and ease of management, and its solidity, strength and durability, is working a complete revolution in the science of house-warming, despite the immense efforts made by persons whose pecuniary interests are being affected by its general use. We are satisfied that all who can see, or obtain correct information respecting the CONE FURNACE, will not be likely to use any other apparatus.

This Furnace has received the highest recommendation from all, and especially from persons of the greatest scientific knowledge in such matters; it received the First Premium and the only Gold Medal ever awarded a Furnace in this State, at the last Fair of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics' Association held in Boston. We have as usual, a full assortment of Chilson's well-known TRIO PORTABLE FURNACES and TRIO STOVES, COOKING RANGES, Mantels, Grates, Registers, Ventilators, &c., and continue to give personal attention to erecting Furnaces, Ranges, and the Ventilation of Buildings in every part of the country.

JOY TO THE POOR!

Comfort to the Rich!
"UFFORD'S SMOKE CONSUMING PATENT LAMP!"

This favorite Lamp now tried in thousands of New England families, and the verdict is—Good! It burns—not only the cheapest Oil, producing a most SUPERB LIGHT WITHOUT the necessity of ANY SMOKE OR SMELL—also all kinds of Grease. (It is well known that grease burns freer and produces a better light even than Oil—as it contains no "Gluten") after melting out the salt. This Lamp is called Smoke Consuming, because it is so constructed that the greatest possible amount of oxygen is brought in contact with the flame (without the aid or rather nuisance of glass chimneys, which necessarily create so much draft that the oil is "eat out" three times as fast as it ought to be)—with this Lamp the carbon, instead of being emitted, is made to "Feed the Flame." Its capacity is about 2-3 of a pint. It burns 12 hours or more—not put out of order unless abused. Ninety-nine persons are pleased with it where one is not. In these times of camphene explosions No Family should be without these Lamps—best pattern bronzed only $1.25, others for the kitchen or shop, cheaper—all burning equally well and every lamp warranted. At the late Fair in Syracuse, N. Y., a Diploma was awarded us for the beautiful operation of the Lamp. We have also many testimonials of the highest character from Clergymen, Editors and others, well known for their scientific labors—including in the list, Rev. H. G. O. Dwight, Missionary at Constantinople; Rev. V. L. Stone, Park Street Church, Boston, and many others. Also, Dr. Jackson, State Assayer, Mass.; Lieut. Gov. Brown; "John G. Whittier" Editors of Puritan Recorder, Traveller, Transcript, Boston Post, and many others.

Medicine.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF Colds, Coughs, and Hoarseness.

BRIMFIELD, MASS., 20th Dec., 1855.

DR. J. C. AYER: I do not hesitate to say the best remedy I have ever found for Coughs, Hoarseness, Influenza, and the concomitant symptoms of a Cold, is your CHERRY PECTORAL. Its constant use in my practice and my family for the last ten years has shown it to possess superior virtues for the treatment of these complaints. EBEN KNIGHT, M. D.

A. B. MORTLEY, Esq., of UTICA, N. Y., writes: "I have used your PECTORAL myself and in my family ever since you invented it, and believe it the best medicine for its purpose ever put out. With a bad cold I should sooner pay twenty-five dollars for a bottle than do without it, or take any other remedy."

Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza.

SPRINGFIELD, MISS., Feb. 7, 1856.

BROTHER AYER: I will cheerfully certify your PECTORAL is the best remedy we possess for the cure of Whooping Cough, Croup, and the chest diseases of children. We of your fraternity in the South appreciate your skill, and commend your medicine to our people.
HIRAM CONKLIN, M. D.

AMOS LEE, Esq., MONTEREY, IA., writes, 3d Jan., 1856: "I had a tedious Influenza, which confined me in doors six weeks; took many medicines without relief; finally tried your PECTORAL by the advice of our clergyman. The first dose relieved the soreness in my throat and lungs; less than one half the bottle made me completely well. Your medicines are the cheapest as well as the best we can buy, and we esteem you, Doctor, and your remedies, as the poor man's friend."

Asthma or Phthisic, and Bronchitis.

WEST MANCHESTER, PA., Feb. 4, 1856.

SIR: Your CHERRY PECTORAL is performing marvellous cures in this section. It has relieved several from alarming symptoms of consumption, and is now curing a man who has labored under an affection of the lungs for the last forty years. HENRY L. PARKS, Merchant.

A. A. RAMSEY, M.D., ALBION, MONROE CO., IOWA, writes, Sept. 6, 1855: "During my practice of many years I have found nothing equal to your CHERRY PECTORAL for giving ease and relief to consumptive patients, or curing such as are curable."

We might add volumes of evidence, but the most convincing proof of the virtues of this remedy is found in its effects upon trial.

Consumption.

Probably no one remedy has ever been known which cured so many and such dangerous cases as this. Some no human aid can reach; but even to those the CHERRY PECTORAL affords relief and comfort.

ASTOR HOUSE, NEW YORK CITY, March 5, 1856.

DOCTOR AYER, LOWELL: I feel it a duty and a pleasure to inform you what your CHERRY PECTORAL has done for my wife. She had been five months laboring under the dangerous symptoms of Consumption, from which no aid we could procure gave her much relief. She was steadily failing, until Dr. Strong, of this city, where we have come for advice, recommended a trial of your medicine. We bless his kindness, as we do your skill, for she has recovered from that day. She is not yet as strong as she used to be, but is free from her cough, and calls herself well.
Yours with gratitude and regard,
ORLANDO SHELBY, OF SHELBYVILLE.

Consumptives, do not despair till you have tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is made by one of the best medical chemists in the world, and its cures all around us bespeak the high merits of its virtues.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

THE sciences of Chemistry and Medicine have been taxed their utmost to produce this best, most perfect purgative which is known to man. Innumerable proofs are shown that these PILLS have virtues which surpass in excellence the ordinary medicines, and that they win unprecedentedly upon the esteem of all men. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. Their penetrating properties stimulate the vital activities of the body, remove the obstructions of its organs, purify the blood, and expel disease. They purge out the foul humors which breed and grow distemper, stimulate sluggish or disordered organs into their natural action, and impart healthy tone with strength to the whole system. Not only do they cure the every-day complaints of every body, but also formidable and dangerous diseases that have baffled the best of human skill. While they produce powerful effects, they are at the same time, in diminished doses, the safest and best physic that can be employed for children. Being sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take; and being purely vegetable, are free from any risk of harm. Cures have been made which surpass belief were they not substantiated by men of such exalted position and character as to forbid the suspicion of untruth. Many eminent clergymen and physicians have lent their names to certify to the public the reliability of my remedies, while others have sent me the assurance of their conviction that my Preparations contribute immensely to the relief of my afflicted, suffering fellow-men.

The Agent below named is pleased to furnish gratis my American Almanac, containing directions for their use and certificates of their cures, of the following complaints:—

Costiveness, Bilious Complaints, Rheumatism, Dropsy, Heartburn, Headache arising from a foul Stomach, Nausea, Indigestion, Morbid Inaction of the Bowels and Pain arising therefrom, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, all Ulcerous and Cutaneous Diseases which require an evacuant Medicine, Scrofula or King's Evil. They also, by purifying the blood and stimulating the system, cure many complaints which it would not be supposed they could reach, such as Deafness, Partial Blindness, Neuralgia and Nervous Irritability, Derangements of the Liver and Kidneys, Gout, and other kindred complaints arising from a low state of the body or obstruction of its functions.

Do not be put off by unprincipled dealers with some other pill they make more profit on. Ask for AYER'S PILLS, and take nothing else. No other they can give you compares with this in its intrinsic value or curative powers. The sick want the best aid there is for them, and they should have it.

GREEN SAND MARL OF NEW JERSEY.

THE NEW JERSEY FERTILIZER COMPANY is now prepared to receive orders for this important manure. For all lands upon which ashes are beneficial the Marl is more than a substitute.

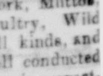

Prof. Cook in his Annual Report to the Legislature of New Jersey says: "the value of these Marls is best seen in the rich and highly cultivated district which has been improved, almost made, by their use; but it may be interesting to examine the causes of their great value in Agriculture, and to compare them with other fertilizers. For example: The potash alone may be taken at an average of five per cent. of the whole weight of the Marl, a bushel when dry weighing eighty pounds, and in the proportion mentioned would contain four pounds of potash; this is nearly as much as there is in a bushel of unleached wood ashes." And again—it is probable that the great value of the Marl is to be found in the fact that it contains nearly all the substances necessary to make up the ash of our common cultivated plants.

Price, delivered on board vessel at the wharves of the Company at Portland Heights on Raritan Bay, New Jersey, seven cents per bushel. For further particulars, see circulars, sent free of postage. Orders for other fertilizers will receive prompt attention. Address either of the undersigned.

N. B.—Those wishing Marl for Spring use, should order immediately to secure its early shipment. Orders will be filled in rotation.
